MILLER'S LIVERY STABLE,

WILLER'S LIVERY STABLE,

The rocky redges will not be utilized for farming in the near future; but they are mostly covered with timber and they are mostly covered with timber and grass, furnishing good pastures for all kinds of stock, and containing rich minerals and valuable rocks. The prairies are small, compared with those of North Missouri and other prairie countries. The soil of the prairies is about the same as that of the uplands. THE TIMBER SUPPLY.

There is an abundance of timber for all es; and, on the prairies and iollows, where not a spring was seen a few years age, in many localities there is now a luxuriant growth of tine, young

MINERALS. The principal mineral, so far developed, is is iron, of which there is an abundance. The shipment of iron ore is quite an item, and a large' number of tams find daily employment in hauling the ore to the railroad. There are strong indications of zinc, copper, and lead—of the last, to judge from the indications, there are large quant thes; but, although it is dug in many localities for local use. it is not yet developed. More capital and and labor is needed to develop the mining resources of the county. Building rock, of the finest quality, can be found in all parts of the county. Lime can be read to have the rock readi y burnt from the rock.

WATER SUPPLY. This county is supplied with an abuners, crecks and branches are as clear as crystal. A muldy strem is unknown in his county, Fine springs can be found in almost every part of the county, and water can be re-ched in wells at from PRODUCTIONS, EXPORTS, FRUIT AND Corn, wheat, oats hay, rye, potatoes.

Fruit of all kinds does well, and will, in time, form quite an item. The county is new, and this branch of industry has been sadly neglected, but now every firmer is planting more or less trees.

The stock of the county is being improved. The long-nosed native hog is a thing of the past—it has given place to improved breeds. Cattle, sheep, horses, and mules, are of a much better grade than a few years ago. The climate is very favorable for stock-raising. The summers are long and the winters short; extremes of heat in summer, and of cold in winter, are only of a few day's dura-ACREAGE AND PRICE OF LAND.

POPULATION STATISTICS.

In 1870, this county had a population of 10,506; the est mated increase is from twenty to twenty-five per cent. The people are law-abiding and sociable. nearty welcome is extended to all bona fiide settlers, regardless of party or religious opinion. EDUCATIONAL FACILITIES

There are sixty-three organized districts and also a graded and high school, and the School of Mines, at Rolla. The School of Mines is a branch of the State University. This school, although in its infancy, having been reorganized in 1871. has furnished a list of graduates who are an honor to the State and a benefit to the communities in which they labor. This school, besides mining and civil engineering and the practical sciences, teaches the languages and higher branches. The school funds of the county for last year were $17.363 62. There are sixtyine teachers employed during the year. The grade of schools is fair, and in some localities very superior. RELIGIOUS

All the leading denominations are repesented in the county. All have churches in the towns and the county at large.

[From the Sedalia Bazoo.] The St. Louis Post-Dispatch has just issued triumphantly from a nonsensical libel suit. The laws on libel are with limestone, gravel and mineral. The soil is sufficiently tertile for all tarm products, but especially adapted to small grains, fruit, tame grasses. It is believed by many farmers that the uplands will be the most valuable lands of this county at no distant day. With the record in the press is now sustained by juries.

A report that "Little Stany," who walked the rope here last summer and who gained the affections of so many, should have been killed in St. Louis, is totally without truth or foundation. Stany is in Cairo, Illinois, making lots of money, but he will soon visit this state again to marry a bright eyed little girl in Rolla whose affection he gained last summer. It will be a rather young couple, but as they dearly and really love one another, they will be happy and do well in this world.

Martin, the condemned murderer who escaped some time ago from the Leban-on jail, taking with him the plucky girl who riskd her all to liberate him is still at large and no trace can be found of him. Had he not been liberated he would of erethis have been launched into eternity by the hangmans hand Thus a young girl gave up a good home friends, brother, sisters, all and even had her fair name besmirched, to liberate a man whom she loved. She cared not whether she robbed the gallows of a deserving wretch and she knew not where she was going or what her future lot would be—she only knew she loved the men, that was enough and all far her. The fact that she had known him only a few weeks proves that her love was pure and heartfelt and no romantic notion. Thus woman is ever ready to sacrifice herself for him she loves and how does man repay her?
